I can assure you,
also the little tract -
which was just the
"sermon" I needed. Thank you many times for them.

Keep which <sup>ever</sup> picture you prefer, and if not too much trouble
for you to return the other, I will use it, as I have promised
several.

Your friends are all well, I believe. There

Dear Mrs. Fiddell -

Ever since we had our little son's picture taken, I have intended sending you
one.

The newcomer however
"see" is mighty in
demands, - and my letter-writing has been rather spasmodic.

the young man seeming rather to object to my following literary pursuits of any kind, no doubt you know what that is though, this antipathy these little nits have to books and papers of any kind in the hands of their Mothers.

I took Robert from a sound sleep in his coach <sup>up</sup> into the photographer's room, hence the frown, which is not habit-ual to him, in fact his eyes and smile are his best features and characteristics, for which I am glad; for the rest are liable to change.

Now, my whole letter is about the boy! excuse my foolishness.
I had hoped to get over and see you before you left - and thank you again in person for the book you sent me, which I

that all and any
of you will be well-
come at our home
at any time you may feel inclined towards the Joazeiro sands. —

And, believe me,
I hasten,
very sincerely

Yours
Jesse Reeves Fishman.

talked of going up
to Phila, with Ed
this morning,
both coming down
in the new boat
which leaves Phila
about 1.30 getting
home about ten o'clock
tonight. — It makes
a delightful trip,
but it is quite cold
today — and I may decide differently.
Mr Fishman has
had a delightful

trip, from Phila to not to run any risks Boston by water, and with him, and then thence to Port Harbor - home is the best Maine - just the place with so young sea-trip he needed - a child.
and it did him He has been taking lots of food, he has such a long nap, not been feeling that it is time for quite well since a summons from his grip-attack above - in the winter).

I have stayed home
this summer, on
baby's account, he
has been so well,
I have felt it best

Please remember me
to Mr Gelden and
his little ones
all round for me.
Please remember that
