

Feb. 17, 1907
Lund B.C.

down & down around it. It has a way as the ground around next to the edge with difference this hole in the center.

Dear Mary:—
As the post mark will show you I am now safely at Lund. Harry has gone up the other side of the island, and we three will be here without him for about a month. We are out of gasoline at present so will go off on foot Monday morning for a few days. I think I am going to like things very well. It seems just like camping. I have been out quite a while today on the bay in a canoe.
The water was as clear as glass and it was clear enough to see the mountains.

Percy is head boss on this job of which I am very glad.

I don't believe I have much to tell you. I had a very uneventful passage except for the thick fog. I couldn't see much of either Victoria or Vancouver on that account. Both towns are about the size of Taloma in appearance. The Canadians seem to be sort of slow and half asleep. Every body wears caps and talks with English accents, and every thing turns to the left.

I wonder if you have written home I haven't yet. How are you getting along? I hope you won't work too hard or worry, and that you will write soon. I am feeling very well and don't anticipate any great discomfort from my work here.

Very truly
Willie.

Mr. H. Belden
Lund
B.C.

Willie thinks Percy much easier to work with than Harry. I think he likes him a great deal better than he does Harry now, though he is a good friend of Harry's.

Willie didn't write you immediately because he wanted me to tell you first, as he, having decided so suddenly, couldn't write till after leaving Seattle.

and thought you would be worried by receiving a letter from him just west in Canada. I suppose he has written by this time.

I have lost one of the buttons off of my little black jacket & haven't had able to wear it for a long time. I wonder if you remember what that were like & could send me one of. I don't want to spend 50¢ for a whole new set. You might send me something like it. I know there were some there very nearly of another color. It is dark ^{the smallest size} ~~pearl~~ size. This is bigger

How it nearly is, but is the size you get when you put the button