

person because the mist is so thick you can't see him, though he is right at your side.

I feel so disappointed about my Christmas presents, because I wanted to make some large ones & now it is too late. They ought to be off long ago & I had even decided what to give.

I'm getting a book for you which I hope you will want, having it sent from the publisher. It is called "The History of the Republic of the United States".

as I was, I'm sure.

I began this letter it must be more than a week ago and had no time to write more than the first part of the first sentence I have my assistant now; but she hasn't done much but correct my set of examination papers, which was hard work, quite a help, as it is a class of 28. I never had so large a class at Buckham, you know.

I was going to make your suggestions to you for Christmas for myself, as I thank you misty. This morning I could hardly see the sailing around my balcony. The the wind is, which blows on it. It is not uncommon out here to mist like this.

3
blue background and right there a brilliant red like gold. It would have made a very dashing bit of decoration work, which is all that I should want this, give it to either or Marjorie & I will send you something else; this is ~~the~~ best translation, you know last year I read Oedipus and

Read 2nd.

Dear Miss Ann,

By the time you get this letter, you will have received and read the pile I sent you and will be as much pleased wanted me to; but now it is too late, I suppose. I was going to say I like an Quaker to buy an map well painted by Mrs. Currier.

 Last night, we got Miss

Antiquary & liked them so much. There is an edition of this with the Greek on opposite page & notes & a fine introduction by [unclear] [unclear] [unclear] [unclear]

complete and I wanted me to much myself that I've sense you would like me.
 It occurred to me that may be you would get one when you give your address in Unpublished. Later editions, but surely you couldn't have the class get copies like this when they have so many authors in the course. I think you can get 12 cent copies of such plays in Wagner's Library.

Classical & Modern

What a surprise I was to find a letter

Must go
Mary.