

London. England -
Sept 3d 1879 -

My dear Isaac -

Today I was made happy by receiving your letter & Mother's - But oh! How sad did we feel when we saw from the post mark that your letters had arrived here at London on the 13th the very day we landed at Liverpool - Then with sorrow of heart did we come to the conclusion that it had come over in the ship of Berlin with us - Well! I was glad to get them any way - we were also filled with delight at receiving your letters in this ocean & post creature that I was, I for a few moments really thought that there had a ship come up to ours sometime in the night & left letters for us - Soon however I found it was you we were waiting for. Today we have done a good deal & yet it seems like a very little compared to what we dare to do. William & I have been out nearly all the day -

26th of December, from William done. Just like Uncle say what we are the best of all people for we are poor & to the we shant to do if every thing is done in society we you could do it yourself. We start for a train & go to it like these respectable creatures. - She - she - I amle tell you John my son charms, but I think you will come to know any more of them. Sunday Oct. 1st All the morning we had & Christ Church to hear Dr. Remond. Hale - She, church is beautiful! Dr. Hale is not the kind of man they expect me to find him, but I liked him much. After the service we made 8 pm our visit of introduction to Mr Hull, he was very nice & cordial & said he was much pleased to see us. Thought it was convenient to take a trip to Canterbury think at present. In the evening we went to hear Joseph Parker. In - that is Miss O'Hanry & I am going alone, but we are now wondering how to give over my Mr. Hale - a together. Miss O'Hanry had unfortunately to go to a Doctor, & Elsie was too tired to go anywhere, so William & I did some fast walking. I can tell you.

Did you ever walk with William?
We had luncheon at a nice little shop.
Every thing is called a shop. Did you know it? Then went to see St Paul's Cathedral, & through a Thousand Street & to a Thousand shop then came home & got Elsie; then went for Miss O'Hanry & then we went to see some very handsome statuary & came home to dinner - well we were late to dinner a little late & if the lady of the house didn't give it to us hot & heavy - why! we were really afraid to eat. & you certainly would have been annoyed to see all four of us perfectly smile through the entire meal.
We have made up for it since for in our room William - Elsie - Miss O'Hanry & I have been just shooting with laughter, before acted like a young minister from New York State who has been living in the same house with us here at London, said he was going to hear Joseph Parker & would take us with him - & just think he sailed for America in the City of Berlin on Thursday - It really gives one quite a Domestic feeling to have him go on the same ship that I came - I had such a good time on Berlin - Our boarding house is real, nice with two exceptions - viz - we have hard work to get enough food to eat & in two of the rooms Miss Pitmanage & myself we have utterly too much company.

In consequence of which I have to spend most after day & night in the most unhappy state of groaning over my mosquitos (B.B) bites - But I suppose I am to come to worse things before I reach my journey's end - I must now bid you a very affectionate farewell with ever & dear & ever I small love to one and all at home. Your loving friend!
