

The extra care of meals until they were all in order. He missed her dreadfully while she was away and Uncle J. thought she stayed away too long a time, Ellen seems very contented tho' she is very anxious to see some one write to her from her home. Aunt E. has just come into my room and sends her love & thanks you very much for your good letter but has no time to write.
I suppose you know that Jimmy expects an addition to her family next month. She has kept it very quiet tho' Carrie has known it for some time.

I think Joe will visit you shortly. perhaps in a couple of weeks. My warmest love you, my dear, William & the children. & many kisses to Harry.

Ellen me
to Maggie's
I hope she will stay as long as you and
Mama.

My dear Ellie,
I came to my room to write to you & find Ellen here and "writing to Mama". No one has seen your last letter to me neither here I consulted any one about my going to Cleburne.
with you, but this is my idea if you board. I think it hardly worth while for me to remain there with you as I do not think I will be needed, as you will no doubt have plenty of society and kind friends. It will be an expense to board, although, I'm sure that ^{piece} is moderate enough. You are not able to do this for me & I have so many ways of spending the little I have, for this study unit. I fear from present appearance is going to absent a good deal, but I'll tell you what I think will be best and I think you & Mrs will approve. I'll go to Bas soon as I can, help you with the packing and see you settle in C.S. and perhaps remain a month, I tried the treatment then, you know at the time I was with Kate but I do not think it was of any particular benefit but the rest was, I am sure.

I suppose you want all the children with you, the older ones to have the benefit of school & the younger need their parent care and discipline, or what are your ideas about that, I am glad Mrs. keeps on improving.
Many think it is quite wonderful.

It's a wholesome rhyme,
A good one to live by,
A 'day at a time'". Helen Jackson

Aunt Ellen has a very good gift this week, but next she goes to the Methodist Ministers - who will be home from their vacation and when she has been living for some time, it is wonderful the way Aunt Ellen looks. She seems cheerful and well - but I often fear she may break down suddenly. She tries by faith, I truly believe, Mary looked greatly improved in her return and has been very busy getting her house in order. The family have thus far been boarding at Ellen Fowler's. Edna said he did not want to have her here
