

My dear Grandma, —

Thank you for the beautiful dishes. They were a great surprise and a great pleasure. You know of course how much I appreciate nice dishes and everything that I have from you always seems so precious. Surely you didn't do them and yet they are just like you work. Perhaps you had Miss Crane do them and perhaps you began them yourself. Any way I prize them greatly, darling Grandma.

That makes me think — surely you are going to see me home before you go back to New York. It is such a dear home, so pretty and so happy. Oh my! how happiful I am every day that I married Eric. And do you know, Grandma, I always feel as if you had a great deal to do with my marrying him. I want you to see him in our home - you would like him even more I think. He certainly is attractive to me anyway - & I think he couldn't help being to any one that had a chance to really see him.

Well, I guess I must take up all my letters raving about Eric - and yet if you are interested in my life here that is chiefly what I have to talk about.

Tonight - Eric brought home Mr. Bowman for dinner. At our house I didn't like Dr. Bowman much because I didn't care for his appearance but now I find him very nice. Well you see we had Thaulstgiving things and so wife thought he'd bring some one to help eat them and he came home early and told me and then made a salad for me. We had turkey - a nice one and nicely cooked if I did do it myself, and my first attempt - at quail just as best as can be and nicely flavored - mashed potato, pumpkin (mashed),

cranberries, Waldorf salad, coffee, and I was going to have mince pie (that made good - "none such mince meat") but they said they could not eat any thing more. We had lots of fun at table & I was crazy over my husband as usual. Now they have gone and I hope will be home soon from the office, but I heard his telephone ring and I suppose it means a call.

Do you remember how I used to say I'd never have a flout and if my husband wanted them he'd have to get them done some where? That was before I was engaged, and before I was married. I wanted to do it for love and almost enjoyed it.

I suppose things are going about the same at Oberlin. Last night was the quite night for them. I thought of it. I hope that all the three had company and went to their respective parties. Probably Emilia managed hers. Did she?

And my bet there was excitement at Oberlin too. The girls have been I suppose talking about their "prom. man." for weeks and now they are saying it is all over. I can hear them.

Grandma dear don't bother to answer this letter just send messages by the others — though your letters are a great pleasure to me, a great
one. I love you dear

graudna.

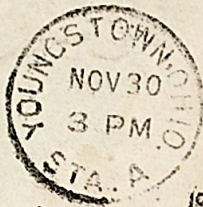

Goodnight.

Love long
