I received your card yesterday and had attended to the plants Annice got a pot & she lily is planted. The chub dinner in well and have been very good. They all stood up to see the Parade on Tuesday eve, if I had known that it would be ten o'clock before they came to this street I would put Ena, at least, to bed, as she did not enjoy it very much at any rate the noise of firing & the fire works that were being set up alarmed her, she thought there might be "lions" in the

"West" in the parade.
She & Willie took a nap on the divan. The fire was made & I wrapped them up warmly and they took no cold.

The houses near us were handsomely illuminated & I lighted the gas in the different rooms, for it seemed almost as if dear Father was with me & this is what he would have done and then we went to the front porch & raised our handkerchiefs &c.

It was certainly a fine display and every body seemed to be out. It was 11 o'clock before the children got to bed & Anne came in at 12 - Co. Rice did not come over, so I made up my mind to stay
without any one else & we have gotten along just as well, & I did not feel tired, I let the older ones stay up last evening until now
in bed & myself ready

It was nearly ten.

This morning Eva
came into my bed
and was rather disappointed that her mamma was not there, but she got her thumb in her mouth
and was comforted.
She did not cry was only a little irritated.
Mrs Elmer brought a little cloak in ^{the morn.} for Eva which she left for you to decide upon, and in the eve. a pair of shavers for me to try on her. I did so this morn and sent Mary to her with them. They seemed

There were three at the meeting on Tuesday. ^{By} Mrs. Elmer led & we had a little talk together ^{as well as reading & prayer}
Mrs. Torrey was here she also sent a bunch of daisies in this morning I hope you will have a restful visit and that the blessing of the Holy Spirit may rest upon the meeting of Synod.
The interest in Mission
be increased,
Mr. Padgett came for your flag on Tuesday
eve. I looked high & low for it but could not find it. The plumber came this morning and went to look at the heater. I heard him at work there, but I did not see him when he went away.
