We have just finished Luppis and Mamm's work on load a line. I don't know what she wants me to say. This afternoon I read two long hours at the library on slavery. We have to read and give reports something as you did in Prof. Hall's class. I never realized what an awful thing slavery was from the moral, religious, educational, every good side you could think of. Uncle Tom's cabin gave me kind of an emotional idea of the poor wretches but this history seems to tell the wrongs of the institution. I still have as much more to read before my report next Wednesday.

I feel as if I had so much time now but I don't seem to be able to get much more done at home. Mamma made sugar cake today, delicious and grandma needed the bread.
Mrs Davis' student girl has gone home sick so Mrs Webster did not come this week. She is such good reliable help. I hope we won't lose her permanently.

Memie is sitting here on the divan and grandma is talking to her. She looks so forlorn.

Ruth is sick or has been for a few days. I am going down tonight to help her a little about her lessons. We have to give the structural analysis of Richard Third for tomorrow besides other questions. We really have "understood" Richard III, to quote from one of my favorite authors, Miss Ward has taught this so much better I think than Marbeth. I enjoy it so much as I usually don't Shakespeare.

What will you think when I tell you that we are to have Chaucer next thing.

We were so awfully cared about you. Please don't wait so long again about writing. When you don't write we all get in such a panic, search the papers and think of nothing else but what can have happened to you. I got a Chicago paper to see if there were any stories out there.

Selden wants to take this down as he goes for the mail, lots and lots of love. We think of you so much. Must stop.
Love again from Ellen Your little sister
Mary
