1889.

Dearst Ellie,

I have been intending to write to you for some time, but it took me so long to get settled, and then are some things I have done just then for some days, at first, I was really feeling quite miserable, & for a few days I have had my old trouble - now I think I am going to be pretty well, somewhat at least I hope so, so much for myself. How are you getting along I have been hoping you could get pussy back, soon as she is, rather than in Colored care, you must have the children write about it. I think of you many times through the day & wish I could do something for you, but don't get discouraged - for somehow you will be helped.

I have been wondering if you have any prospect of making a change. Oh! the horrors of moving & such a moving as you would, here, it is dreadful to think of.
Carrie wants me to ask you to send length of Evelyn's dress shirt she promised her when at Oxford to make her a white flannel dress & she is anxious for her measurements as soon as possible perhaps you could get her pattern of Mrs. Coombs which C. says would be better.

If you don't get the pattern she will then have length of sleeves & waist.

How is William, I hope he don't get discouraged about his church.
I shall always be glad I was in Bridgeton & with you last summer. I look back with pleasure to all ^{the} privileges & blessings of that time & I feel that Uncle has accomplished much since he has been there. Why could not he get Dr. Benson's church, it seems to me that would be just the place for him, but the Lord will direct. They have a very good preacher here, Mr. Roscamp, he is English - very interesting & earnest.

There are continual additions to the church. The building is progressing finely - There is much building here some very fine houses. It seems quite different from an eastern city, but I am much better pleased than I expected to be, am getting quite used to going about. The roads are all macadamised & about as level as the country about Bridgetown Carrie & I with baby took a drive several miles out of the town.

The ladies drive a great deal four, sometimes more with one horse. They have fine horses.

We had a very good view of Niagara Falls - from the Can. side. The train stopping for some minutes passengers walking to a platform which we did, in a hail storm which I don't know but added to the grandeur tho' we missed the Bow-bell. I must close

Geo & Carrie. & Chas. have come up & I suppose it is getting late as it was not very early when I came to my room.
~~write~~ Good night my precious Child may God bless you & my mother
