I have been led in such sweet paths the last months, and such surprises to me. Edmund has been such a dear, loving husband, and misses me so much when I am away I don't feel like doing as I did when I went to Bristol, and go without his consent. I did want to see you all so much then, as I have many times before and since.
I shall be only too glad when the way is opened for a visit to you - I am so hungry to see C.S.

He broke off Aunt Ellen's front tooth, and now wants to pull it or saw it off, and put a crown on it - I am vexed at him, and am going to take him up to Stroudsburg to see what Dr Douglass can do.

Carrie is begging me to come with the children to see her before she goes south, and I want so much to go there but you see I am gone so many days. Phillipsburgh
