

I'm asking for you. I didn't know any thing about losing my key, but maybe Mamma did. I could not find my key, my trunk was not locked I had a key, now Mamma has put my key but the lock was broken off with the I haven't time to write work, but must send you this letter. I got your letter also your postal card today I was awfully glad to get them.

I had a letter the first day after I got here from Zulina (which I sent home) & then I have had this one that I am sending you. This one I have had. I have had nothing but this scrap from Mamma. She must be awfully busy but I guess she is not ill from what she says.

From a sentence in Evelyn's letter I take it that the 3 upstairs rooms are not rented. I'm awfully sorry after all the work. I wonder if there could be any thing in the Christian Science idea of opposition, that my strong opposition but scepticism of it had any thing to do with it. By the way you know that the chippier(?)
was taken down to the dish pan.

I have lots to say but can't stop now. Had a telephone message from Mary Cochran tonight asking me over for dinner tomorrow night.
I couldn't understand what that was all about but I guess it's all right. Love Mary me. in reading over the letter. It is not usual to see your name in the end of a letter.

My precious Pennywinks!
I have just received and read this very interesting letter from Victoria & Mary's which she enclosed. Read the former and send it right on to Mary as soon as you know her New-Haven address, for she will likely be homesick at first. I started a letter by the rounds (Monday), but I have been too busy to write

Much separately. I wrote also to Willie but the music has not started yet.
You know how it is now here - constant interrupting Selden & I get on finely and have been wonderfully well, all things considered.
I have been canning & making jelly. Fanny is not here today but I don't miss her, we have so few dishes, & she is less help than ever. She gets through early these days.
I found you Key & will send.
It - your loving loving Nanna
