My precious Pennywinks:-

I have just written to Polly and as it is about supper time I will only write you a line in forwarding Mary's letter.

If you still have the $35<sup>00</sup> you offered to me, you had better send it right on to Mary, as it will relieve her mind to have it in hand. Of course she must stay to Commencement, and go to as many things as she can afford.

I shall not go East nor to J. M. U. but I think it would be nice if Mary could make a few short visits on friends and relatives before she returns, and then let us all have a visit together during the summer. I have invited Grandma to come too. I am going to write and ask Aunt Mary to bring Grandma on.

The Embroidery plan is a good one I think, or the painting. But don't try to teach. Your girls need a change of work & thought. Erelina will look up the applique & send you. She came Wednesday evening, & got her trunk today which she has been unpacking. She has not yet received her last books. Money, so can't send any to Mary yet, & it may not come on time. Mabel Whitney is just calling now on Erelina.

You had better keep at Aunt Mary until she answers about the postal order or the Money will be lost to both of you.

Eveline is waiting to take this to mail. I have it your letter at hand, + may not have answered
