THE FOLLOWING HAVE CAREFULLY EXAMINED

"The Century Book of Facts."

READ WHAT THEY THINK OF IT!

Sir CHARLES TUPPER, House of Commons, Ottawa, Canada.

I consider it a very valuable addition to my library. You have evidently bestowed a great deal of time and attention upon it and have been successful in compiling a very valuable work.

CHARLES R. SKINNER, Superintendent of Public Instruction, New York State.

I have mislaid my copy of "The Century Book of Facts" and feel lost without it. Is it possible for me to obtain another copy? I regard it as one of the most valuable books published.

ROBERT WM. HUDGELL, Calvary Rectory, Danvers, Mass.

The purchasing of "The Century Book of Facts" was about the best investment I have ever made in the book line. I find it not only useful as book of general information, but invaluable as a book of reference. It is a splendid gift-book for a boy or girl. I have a son who uses it constantly, almost daily, in the preparation of his school lessons, and it has become his trade mecum when he wants to know anything. It saves a parent from being asked and trying to answer many important questions.

Rev. E. S. GREENLEAF, York Corners, Me.

I find "The Century Book of Facts" purchased from your agent indispensable, and if I could not get another I would not dispose of this one for any money.

L. D. ROBERTS, A. B., Principal Alexander, N. Y., Union School and Academy.

I have found "The Century Book of Facts" frequently useful in looking up facts not readily obtainable from other sources.

D. D. YOKAM, Asst. Postmaster, Westfield, N. H.

I find "The Century Book of Facts" one of the most useful books I have in my library and I consider it one of the most valuable. I would not take twice the money I paid for it.

W. M. BEARDSHEAR, President Iowa State College.

The "Century Book of Facts" is a valuable compendium to meet the vital needs of an every-day necessity in a busy age. It compiles a vast amount of information adapted to the use of any reader. It contains a great amount of knowledge in brief subjects and within the reach of everyone.

WM. K. FOWLER, State Supt. of Schools, Lincoln, Neb.

It is invaluable for handy reference.

A. R. TAYLOR, Pres. Kansas State Normal School, Emporia, Kan.

The "Century Book of Facts" impresses me as being an accurate collection of the most interesting and important facts in the great departments of history and knowledge. I have never elsewhere seen so comprehensive an epitome of the world's knowledge and achievements in so small a space. The book will be found invaluable both in the home and in the school room.

JOHN R. KIRK, Pres. Missouri State Normal School, Kirksville, Mo.

As a condensed cyclopaedia of information, interesting and serviceable to people of all ages, occupations and professions, I regard the "Century Book of Facts" one of the best I have ever seen.

It is my rule not to purchase subscription books, but I shall take a copy of this one.

W. H. GEMMELL, Co. Supt. of Schools, Keokuk Co., Iowa.

After an examination of "The Century Book of Facts" I must say that it is one of the very best works of the kind I have ever seen. It is just such a work as is needed by the busy man, and is at the same time a valuable addition to any library. I also consider it an excellent book for the home since it is easily understood by children in the advanced grades of school.

DAVID M. EDWARDS, B. S., Prof. of History, Penn College, Oskaloosa, Ia.

To all whom it may concern: I have examined "The Century Book of Facts" and am free to say that I was greatly surprised at its completeness and systematic arrangement. In my estimation one can find more facts and find them easier, quicker and more accurately than in any work yet published.

J. J. McCONNELL, Prof. of Pedagogy, State University of Iowa.

To whom it may concern: I have seen and examined somewhat the book entitled "The Century Book of Facts." It is a book which contains a vast amount of useful information; this information is well organized and classified and is therefore easily available for use. I recommend the book to the careful consideration of any who may desire a compendium of extremely useful information.
