

Millic dear -

I am absolutely lame, but am more tired than lame - You do forgive your Aunt if you can - I am so intimidated in what you ask me - So glad that Percy liked me - and you to advise - as to my valuable advice -
One thing you requested to say - How much you want to spend - or will spend - I have just appeared me advice to offer viz - get solid silver - that always is nice - ~~and~~ always to be used in a most modest little home, or a palace - & outlets every thing else & is nice upon all occasions

- is about the easiest thing to move from place to place

I find my silver wedding present - of course I have my fur of any present - use the ones that I still enjoy - others break, or get so out of fashion not like "antiques" that are lovely - but just old enough to be ugly - If the people are among them rich, I should say there would - some of them - give a "chest of table silver" - I suppose

You couldnt feed out, & also no doubt what you got would not be too much like anything else - So much for my advice - If you should wish me to do anything about the peaches
- I'll gladly - You would not care for a piece of jewelry for the bride that
- unless the bride is a very intimate friend - Love Aunt
