

The 18th —

Dear Mary

We do not leave here until Saturday the 23rd — if you should be leaving Cambridge before that I trust you will call.
Any time you wish to write me Address 141 E. 2nd St — it will be forwarded to me at once. I hope you may have a pleasant summer — your postal when I wrote her.

And I said I knew you would want to write her when you got your work well in hand but you would doubtless be very busy at first. Give her the family news. I am sure she will expect a letter from you.

Yours truly,
Franklin
Tell her all the bright things you can, & loving ones. For I think she is a lovely old lady. and get strong and healthy for your future work.
Give much love to your dear mother from me and please write soon

The outside envelope was addressed 130 Home St.
Cambridge Boston. I an-sured immediately - eight pages in my best style, & enclosed her envelope so that she might see her own handwriting with the wrong address.

The 18th is evidently June 18, & I am sorry you didn't get the letter & call on her in N. Y. while you were at Auntys.
Well, I told her of your safe arrival, being met by Mellie, for we had only had

My dear Mary:- Some days after you had gone I received a notification that I was wanted at the P.O. for a personal matter. On going down I found this letter of Cousin Anna's enclosing a $⁰⁰ bill. There was a letter from the Dead Letter Office saying that they had communicated with Anna G. Randell, & she desired, ^{in return} "sent" to me at Oberlin.
I signed up some papers & got it & used the two dollar bill for household expenses. About a week after that & before I had written Cous. A. I got the other letter.
You see she mistakes the time as she did the address before.
