Please answer. Tell the truth, you know our family habits as to hours of sleep, meals, noise, quiet etc - Also the bathroom ↓ size of the house - though I think you'd be surprised to see how improved we are.

You also know McConnich, size, bathroom etc etc. I think we shall have our five girls, & a - or several - teacher living there. Very likely not, keep it free for possible hospital use.

All things considered would you prefer, in case it could be arranged, to have your own rooms in this house or McCormick? You know we use the two as one but there is some aloofness. The girls would be up for 6:30 breakfast, at study hall 7 to 8:30 p. m. & in bed at 9.

Our rooming plans shift daily as details change so what we think now may not materialize.
But which do you think. I guess the only reason I'd consider you sleeping under a different roof is because this house is so small that every sound carries all over every so we might find that ~~less~~ ^{more} ~~troublesome~~ ^{troublesome} than the airspace between the two houses. ^{reasons} Quite fine to go making over in the chance the house you will live in - 1 hour long in with the small window.
