

Dear Evchnia <sup>5 p.m. - 10:00</sup> <sup>of Ellen's</sup> <sup>Bilder</sup> Monday night -

The children and Mr. Paulson had supper with us to-night, and I learned the sad news of your mother's death. I know how sad and weary you are to-night and my heart goes out to you and your sister. Your mother's wonderful character showed its' beauty in her picture, the one you have. Mercy Booker mentioned the impression the picture made on her, when I told her of your call to Elynira. What a real work your mother did alone for many years, and she had her reward in her fine family. I hope <sup>the rest of</sup> your family were able to be with you and your sister these past days.

Do not worry about the children. They looked very well to-night and have every time I have seen them. They seem very happy with Helen and her mother. They played a number of her pieces for us after supper. Billy had to be excused to go to a meeting at the home of his Sunday school teacher, and Will took him there. He returned quickly, so as not to miss the political talk by Calvin Coolidge. The children played very quietly and happily with the blocks, while we listened. If only everyone <sup>could have</sup> heard that a speech!

Will took your family home for it was raining steadily. It promises to be a rainy electric day.

I went to the Forum meeting last night with Neeraj. Never saw such a crowd at the church as the one out to hear Doctor Sadler on "Sop-sided Personalities". Many direct questions were put <sup>to him</sup> on child management.

As he refused to answer, caused much amusement when read; it was
"How can a person with a conscience vote for Governor of Illinois next Tuesday?"

Mother's Circle meets Wednesday of this week.

I wish I might send my sympathy in some real way, or at least express it well, but I want to tell you <sup>that</sup> you have my love and sympathy in this real loss.
May you have strength these days.

Sincerely yours -
Walter R. Scott
